Christian View

Hope against hope

What is a Christian's view of the Coroner Virus?
In thinking of that question, my mind went to the words in the Bible which said, "Who against hope, believed in hope."
This was said of Abraham before he was to have a son through his wife, Sarah. She was 75 years old, and he was over 90. But God said it would be so.
From Abraham's view point, it was all against hope, but he believed in hope. He refused to be governed by what he knew and saw and felt.
Everything appeared hopeless, but he continued to hope.
As we look at the days and months ahead, we need hope.
For most people, their hope is fixed on getting to the other side of Covid-19.
That is what we all hope for, but for many, this is the extent of their hope.
Their trust centres on medical scientists and not on God.
We need a hope that goes beyond Covid-19. We need a hope that transcends this life, our sins and failures, our pains and sorrows. We need a hope that goes beyond death itself.
This is why the Bible says that true faith is a gift of God.
If we had to manufacture our own faith, it could never stand the test of 'hoping against hope'.
Life can be a long painful slog, but the Bible says, "weeping may endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning."
It is in the midst of struggling through the night that we wait with hope, and as we wait our faith grows stronger.
As Isaiah said, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength.
Every believer who continues to hope when everything seems to be against hope, gives glory to God. It helps to know that God has great pleasure in the presence of our faith. Especially if all things seem to be against hope, we continue to believe in the hope that God gives us.

TODAY'S GOOD NEWS

The great dilemma

Ken Packer
www.kenpacker.id.au

Do unbelievers say life is accidental – without purpose or plan – a dead-end existence?
First, to be consistent, if living on earth is therefore futile and pointless, life can't be worth living.
If everything is just accidental, without a Designer, we can't believe that our world of wonder and beauty is meant to bring us joy and intended to excite and inspire our admiration.
Yet, second, in every walk of life, many unbelievers say they are pursuing fulfilling careers, and are engaged in great scientific endeavours that are meaningful and significant!
Conducting purposeful experiments in a purposeless environment? Are they serious?
Third, Christians believe that unbelief is really a spiritual issue and that very often unbelieving thoughts reflect what the Bible calls "enmity against God" Romans 8.7.
Fourth, the Bible declares what gives rise to this viewpoint. Spiritual forces are at work. "The god of this age has blinded the minds of unbelievers." 2 Corinthians 4.4 (NIV).
Fifth, what is needed, therefore, to accept God's reality? Not a surrender of superior thinking, but a heart surrender.
How wonderful when new understanding dawns, scales fall from our eyes, and we see the peace, joy and wonder of God's reality.

GOOD NEWS IN BRIEF

"God is our witness that we speak only the truth." 2 Corinthians 4.2 (Bible for Today).
